About the Disruption House

Established in 2015, The Disruption House is a trusted, market-leading sustainability advisory firm, providing firms of all sizes with a unique range of affordable, tailored data-driven solutions that enable them to achieve their sustainability and business resiliency goals quickly and easily.

The company is led by a team of highly experienced sustainability, technology and business development experts, committed to using data to help businesses transform into modern, sustainable enterprises.

Company Leadership

Rupert Bull, Founder and CEO

Rupert has over 25 years of FinTech experience within both large organisations (Reuters and Instinet) and start-ups. He co-founded, built, and sold Expand Research, the leading Capital Markets benchmarking and research business to The Boston Consulting Group (BCG) in 2011, before leaving to found The Disruption House in early 2015.

Tom Egan, Chief Technology Officer

Tom has held senior technology leadership roles in banks such as Goldman Sachs and public and private technology firms. This gives Tom both the technical and business expertise to support the firm's growth and success in the fast-paced world of technology.

Richard Cummings, Chief Commercial Officer

Richard has over 30 years global experience in banking and the financial software sector. With a proven track record of driving growth, Richard has served as CEO of Cashfac Technologies, EVP SmartStream Technologies and held senior positions at SunGard Capital Markets and Reuters.

Marcus Gunn, Head of Product and ESG Research

Marcus has worked in investment banking for 25 years serving fund managers across geographies and asset classes in Asia and Europe. After 5 years leading Barclays Asia research content platform in HK, he transferred back to London to head up global thematic research product and spent the last 3 years working on pan sector sustainability and ESG-linked research.

Usha Back, Head of Research

Dr Usha Back has over 10 years of experience in the financial sector and has worked internationally at the Capital Group Companies. Her role as an Investment Analyst involved analysing and investing in listed companies on behalf of institutional clients. She subsequently founded a strategic consulting company focused on the fintech and biotech sectors. Usha holds a PhD in Pharmacy from the UCL School of Pharmacy where she is also currently a guest lecturer.
